

Legal Research from Home:

The Connecticut Judicial Branch Law Libraries' website makes available two useful reference cards that link you to freely available online legal research resources:

- Quick References for Connecticut Legal Questions
- Quick References for Federal Legal Questions

Included in the Connecticut reference card are some of the most used resources, including:

- Connecticut Statutes (Search or browse)
- Connecticut Court Rules (Including Notice of Suspended Rules)
- Connecticut Case Law on Google Scholar (Search CT Supreme and Appellate Court Cases from 1950 forward)
- Connecticut Regulations (Search or browse)
- Connecticut Ordinances (Browse by town)
- CTLawHelp.org (Legal help for people with very low income, including a Coronavirus legal information page)
- Connecticut Law Search Engine (Search for CT legal information and browse historical legal resources)

It is suggested that if, using the online resources that are available for free, you locate a statute, case decision, or practice book rule of interest, you may submit the citation for the material and a librarian will check if an annotated version is available. The annotations may reference additional cases, statutes or rules that are helpful to your search. If such a citation is located, that material could be requested by submitting the citation to the email service.

We also make available Law by Subject pages to help you get started with your research and Legal Research Guides for more in-depth research on particular topics. For other general or legal research questions, we can be reached by email at lawlibrarians@jud.ct.gov.

You may consider subscribing to the Law Library Services NewsLog which provides access to Connecticut decisions organized by subject areas.

Sincerely,

Law Library Services
